Beginning in August 2020, Mr. Baron was appointed as a Professor of the Practice on the faculty of the University of Maryland College of Information Studies. He teaches graduate courses in law, archives, and information policy, and undergraduate courses in information science. His current research interests include advancing practical applications of AI to government settings involving the Freedom of Information Act and other records laws.

Between 2013 and 2020, Mr. Baron served as Of Counsel at Faegre Drinker Biddle & Reath, LLP, in Washington, D.C., in the Information Governance and eDiscovery Group of the firm's Commercial Litigation practice. His legal practice consisted of creative problem solving for clients with issues involving the management of records and information, including meeting their e-discovery and compliance obligations. He also has served as Co-Chair of The Information Governance Initiative, a vendor-neutral industry consortium and think tank dedicated to advancing best practices in the information governance space.

Previously, Mr. Baron served for 13 years as the first Director of Litigation for the U.S. National Archives and Records Administration. Between 1988 and 1999, Mr. Baron served as trial attorney and senior counsel at the Department of Justice, defending the government's interests in complex federal court litigation, and appearing as counsel of record in landmark cases involving the preservation of White House email, statistical adjustment of the U.S. census, and early attempts to regulate the Internet. As NARA's Director of Litigation, Mr. Baron led NARA's efforts to provide responsive White House email and other records in the massive U.S. v. Philip Morris RICO lawsuit. He also was active in assisting in the defense of lawsuits filed against the Archivist of the United States under the Freedom of Information Act, the Federal Records Act, and the Presidential Records Act in a wide variety of high-profile cases.

Mr. Baron is lead editor of PERSPECTIVES IN PREDICTIVE CODING AND OTHER ADVANCED SEARCH METHODS FOR THE LEGAL PRACTITIONER (2016), published by the American Bar Association. Among his many other publications, he is the co-author of Finding the Signal in the Noise: Information Governance, Analytics, and The Future Of Legal Practice, 20 RICHMOND JOURNAL OF LAW AND TECHNOLOGY 7 (2014), author of Law in the Age of Exabytes: Some Further Thoughts on 'Information Inflation' and Current Issues in E-Discovery Search, 17 RICHMOND JOURNAL OF LAW AND TECHNOLOGY 9 (2011), and co-author of Information Inflation: Can the Legal System Adapt?, 13 RICHMOND JOURNAL OF LAW AND TECHNOLOGY 10 (2007), all available online.

Mr. Baron is past Co-Chair of The Sedona Conference Working Group 1 on Electronic Document Retention and Production (WG1), having served in that capacity from 2009 to 2011, and as a member of the Steering Committee from 2008 to 2012. His contributions to The Sedona Conference include serving as an Editor-in-Chief of The Sedona Conference Best Practices

Commentary on the Use of Search and Information Retrieval Methods in E-Discovery (2007 & 2013 eds.), of The Sedona Conference Commentary on Achieving Quality in the E-Discovery Process (2009 & 2013 eds.), and of The Sedona Conference Commentary on Finding the Hidden ROI in Information Assets (2011). He also was an editor on the drafting team for The Sedona Conference Commentary on Information Governance (2013).

Mr. Baron was a founding co-coordinator of the National Institute of Standards and Technology TREC Legal Track, a multiyear international information retrieval project devoted to evaluating search issues in a legal context, and served as track coordinator for the first four years of the track (2006-2009). See <http://trec-legal.umiacs.umd.edu> for overview papers and research conducted. Mr. Baron also has co-organized a series of workshop bringing together scientists, academics and lawyers to discuss e-discovery issues relating to search and information retrieval. See “DESI” Workshop series (Discovery of Electronically Stored Information), Palo Alto (2007), London (2008), Barcelona (2009), and Pittsburgh (2011), Rome (2013), San Diego (2015), and London (2017), all but one held in conjunction with ICAIL 2007 through ICAIL 2017 (the Eleventh through Sixteenth International Artificial Law and Intelligence Conferences). For links to all DESI workshops, see <http://www.umiacs.umd.edu/~oard/desi/>. He has co-organized additional international AI and e-discovery workshops in Montreal at ICAIL 2019, and at SIGIR 2011 in Beijing. In December 2018, Mr. Baron chaired the first e-discovery conference held in India, at the National Law School of India University in Bangalore.

During his prior ten years as an adjunct faculty member at the University of Maryland’s College of Information Studies, Mr. Baron co-taught the first e-discovery graduate course for Ph.D. and Masters candidates in information studies in the United States. In the Spring of 2017 he co-taught an e-discovery course at the Washington College of Law, American University. He also has been a Visiting Scholar at the University of British Columbia, where he taught a course on cyberspace law, and has taught a summer course on electronic evidence at the University of Albany. He has participated in the drafting of reports for InterPARES, an international research project in archival science on the subject of the long-term preservation of electronic records.

Mr. Baron was appointed to a two-year term on the 2018-2020 FOIA Advisory Committee to the Archivist of the United States. Since 2004, Mr. Baron has served on the Advisory Board to the Georgetown University Law Center Advanced E-Discovery Institute. He also currently serves on the advisory board of the Cardozo Data Law Initiative. He has served as Chair of the D.C. Bar Litigation Section’s E-discovery and Information Governance Committee, on the Educational Advisory Board for Legaltech, as an Outside Director on the Board of Directors of ARMA International, and on the ARMA Information Governance Practitioner Certification Board. He also has served on the faculty of the Georgetown E-discovery Training Academy, and has participated in a variety of ABA activities, including speaking at past ALI-ABA e-discovery conferences and at national conferences hosted by the ABA Litigation Section and the ABA Science and Technology Division. Additionally, Mr. Baron has covered information governance topics of interest in the “Signal and Noise” column in Legaltech News (formerly Law Technology News).

During the course of his career Mr. Baron has given presentations on preservation and access issues involving electronic records in over 600 forums, including both throughout the U.S. and Canada, and as an international keynote or invited speaker at conferences held in Australia, Austria, Belgium, the Czech Republic, Germany, Greece, India, Italy, Nepal, The Netherlands, South Africa, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom. He has chaired e-discovery conferences, workshops, and all-day CLE forums; moderated “mini-Sedona” sessions at annual meetings of ARMA and the Society of American Archivists; moderated panel sessions during at conferences sponsored by The Sedona Conference as well as by the Georgetown Advanced E-Discovery Institute; facilitated “information governance bootcamps” sponsored by the Information Governance Initiative; and has guest lectured at many law schools and graduate schools. He has given dozens of targeted briefings to federal audiences, including government lawyers, IT staff and records managers, on the subject of electronic recordkeeping under U.S. records laws. He had the honor of serving as a co-panelist with Associate Justice Stephen Breyer at an e-discovery forum held at Georgetown Law School in March 2007. In May 2010, he was invited to present as a panelist at the Duke Law School Civil Litigation Reform Conference, and in September 2011 was invited to participate in a mini-conference on preservation and sanctions held by the Discovery Subcommittee of the Advisory Committee on Civil Rules. In 2013 he co-chaired the Georgetown Advanced E-Discovery Institute’s inaugural conference on e-discovery for government practitioners. In 2019, he was invited to speak at the first AI and the Rule of Law multi-stakeholder roundtable held in Athens, Greece, under the auspices of The Future Society and IEEE.

Mr. Baron received recognition in the 2015 through 2020 editions of Chambers USA for the category “Litigation: E-Discovery (Nationwide),” where he has been described as “a leader in the area for years,” “an absolute asset to the practice,” and one who “gives comprehensive, useable advice from a position of deep experience, strength and a lot of confidence in what he does.” The American Lawyer magazine named Mr. Baron as one of the six “most important e-discovery trailblazers” in its 2013 issue devoted to the “Top 50 Big Law Innovators of the Last 50 Years,” citing in particular his work with the TREC Legal Track. Mr. Baron was the 2011 recipient of the Emmett Leahy Award, bestowed by an international committee for outstanding contributions to the records and information management profession. See <http://www.emmettleahyaward.org/>. He was also the 2013 recipient of the Justice Tom C. Clark Outstanding Government Lawyer award, given by the D.C. Chapter of the Federal Bar Association, recognizing his career contributions during three decades in the federal civil service. During his time in government, Mr. Baron received numerous additional awards and commendations for excellence, including eight awards from the Justice Department, five from the Archivist of the United States and NARA, as well as from the National Security Council, the Department of Health and Human Services, and the Social Security Administration. He was named a recipient of the 2008 Fed 100 Award, sponsored by Federal Computer Week, for his e-discovery related advocacy. He also has been honored as the 2012 recipient of the D.C. Alumni Public Service Award by his law school alma mater.

Mr. Baron appeared in the documentary The Decade of Discovery (2014), which in part concerns his career as a government attorney on a quest to find a better way to search White House e-mail. See <http://www.10thmountainfilms.com;> <https://www.amazon.com/Decade-Discovery-Esq-Jason-Baron/dp/B01FT519I0>. The documentary has been screened at dozens of law schools, e-discovery conferences, and at other special events, including in Amsterdam, Bangalore, London, Paris, Prague, and Zurich. In connection with past recordkeeping controversies, Mr. Baron has been invited to appear on NBC Nightly News, Good Morning America, MSNBC’s “The Last Word with Lawrence O’Donnell,” CNN’s “Smerconish,” NPR’s All Things Considered, and WAMU’s Koyo Nnamdi Show, and has been quoted in The New York Times, The Washington Post, Time Magazine,

CBS News, The Wall Street Journal Washington Wire, Politico, Factcheck.org, and numerous other media outlets.

Mr. Baron received his B.A., magna cum laude, with honors in government, from Wesleyan University, and his J.D. from the Boston University School of Law, where he was a member of the law school's National Moot Court Team.
